Do you know your friends?

Be in control

Use the NEW Privacy Shortcuts,  embedded in Facebook to manage and modify your privacy, control your profile and what you share with your friends. Use the new Privacy Shortcut (Who can see my stuff? & Who can see my future posts) to control who can see the content you post on Facebook. Better still, consider carefully what you share with people you don't know well.

Know your friends

Only accept friend requests from people you know. If you do accept friends you don't know, bear in mind they might not be who they say they are.

Report

If something upsets you on Facebook, don't reply, save the evidence and block the person who is harassing you. You can also report the person by doing the following:

1. Go to the profile you want to report
2. Click the  icon beneath the cover photo and then select Report.

You can track progress of your reports using the NEW Support Dashboard, it will also alert you when a decision has been made about your report. For now, the Dashboard only tracks reports of timelines and photos. If content isn't removed, the reporter will be told why. More information on the Support Dashboard: <http://on.fb.me/IRcv7q>.

Who can find the content you post?

Consider only letting your "Friends" see everything.

Remember though when tagging is involved, you need to be mindful that often 'friends of friends' can also see who and what you tag. For up-to-date tagging info, visit: <http://on.fb.me/PQzwdD>

1. Click the cog (Top Right )
2. Who can see my stuff
3. Who can see my future posts

3. Who can look me up?
4. Do you want other search engines to link to your Timeline?
5. Click edit & remove tick from the box.

(Under 18s are automatically removed from search engine results)

Control your Applications

1. Click the cog (Top Right )
2. Account Settings
3. Apps
4. Remove apps you don't need (x).

The new App permissions will give you more control on what you share.

Keep an eye on your timeline

1. Your timeline lists all your activities
2. You can edit or delete the activities on your timeline
3. Scroll over timeline activity until Edit or Remove  appears on right hand side of activity and click.

The NEW Activity Log on your timeline makes it easier for you to review your posts and make changes to the audience of past content. A new feature here is the Request and Removal tool for removing multiple photos you are tagged in.

Be in control of what you share online

Don't give away too much about yourself!

1. Facebook have a real name policy so you are not anonymous
2. Think carefully before you upload an image, who are you sharing it with?
3. If you are accessing Facebook via a smartphone, you might be disclosing your location without realising it
4. The internet never forgets. The content you post online can be copied, saved and manipulated, even though you may have previously deleted it. You can lose control over content once posted online
5. What first impression does your profile give? Would you be happy for your future college, university or employer to see your embarrassing photos?

Take notice of how your images are used

1. The sharing of images and videos which may hurt or harm another person is not allowed. When posting or sharing any image, ensure that you ask the person if they agree to their image being uploaded
2. If you don't want your image to be uploaded, ask the person to delete it
3. Use the Tag Approval feature, to control content about you posted by others
4. If you feel that you are being bullied on Facebook, you can report it on the site using the Report button. Use the Social Reporting feature to get help from a parent, teacher or trusted friend without reporting the bully directly.

How does your profile appear?

When posting and sharing content online it is important to consider what other people can see about you. On Facebook you can see exactly what your profile looks like to others by using the “View As..” tool.

1. Use the privacy shortcut
2. Select ‘Who can see my stuff’
3. ‘What do other people see on my Timeline’ and click on ‘View as..’
4. You’ll see what your profile looks like to the public. To preview how your profile appears to a specific person, such as a friend, click View as specific person and type their name into the open field and press enter.

Note:

The ‘View As...’ tool doesn’t show whether people can interact on your Wall through posts, likes or comments. Your Wall privacy settings will always apply, and anyone who can see a post can like or comment on it.
